

SWDTC ADVANCED TRAINING Programme on Gender

Wednesday 18 May 2016, 2.00-6.00pm
Social Science Complex, Priory Road, University of Bristol

Workshop on

Gender in Political Theory: The Work of Anne Phillips

The workshop will explore the work of Anne Phillips, and her contribution to the idea of gender from a political theory perspective.

Professor Anne Phillips will be present at the Workshop to discuss and respond to postgraduate paper presentations on her works discussing gender related issues, such as The Politics of Presence (Oxford University Press, 1995), Gender and Culture (Polity Press, 2010), and Our Bodies, Whose Property? (Princeton University Press, 2013),

Registration is free though anyone interested in attending should contact either Professor Sarah Childs (S.Childs@bristol.ac.uk) or Kate Townsend (kb256@exeter.uk)

Staff and students of institutions participating in the SWTDC can claim travel expenses for participation in the event, if they are not based in Bristol. For further information, please, contact Dario Castiglione (d.castiglione@exeter.ac.uk)

Wednesday 1 June 2016, 11.00-1.30pm
Ibrahim Room, Reed Hall, University of Exeter

Workshop on

Exploring the 'Man' Question, Again: A feminism perspective

The 'Man question' has been widely debated by feminist scholarship for more than a decade. Now it has become a topic of widespread public interest. The UN's 'He for She' campaign is the most visible examples of this. The shift from autonomous women's organizing to more mixed gender organizing in the context of feminist activism is another example. This one day workshop will address several related political, theoretical, and methodological questions concerning the role of men in the theory and practice of feminism. The workshop will be organized by Bice Maiguashca. External Speakers include: Victoria Basham (Cardiff), Terrell Carver (Bristol), Jonathan Dean (Leeds).

Registration is free though anyone interested in attending should contact Dr. Bice Maiguashca (b.maiguashca@exeter.ac.uk)

Staff and students of institutions participating in the SWTDC can claim travel expenses for participation in the events, if they are not based in Exeter. For further information, please, contact Dario Castiglione (d.castiglione@exeter.ac.uk)

SWTDC ADVANCED TRAINING Programme on Political Argument
Together with the Centre for Political Thought, University of Exeter

Thursday 2 June 2016, 9.00-5.00pm
Ibrahim Room, Reed Hall, University of Exeter

Workshop on
Intergenerational Justice in historical perspective

Questions of intergenerational justice lie at the center of political debate on a range of issues including climate change, pension reform, reparations for historical wrongs, and the preservation of cultural patrimony. Yet, by a curious irony, political philosophical reflections on these topics have tended to bypass their historical forerunners, thereby cutting us off from traditions of thought that may prove illuminating. The aim of this workshop is to bring a sample of these traditions to bear on the contemporary debate about intergenerational justice including, but not restricted to, Ancient Stoicism, Scottish Enlightenment moral psychology, and Burkean conservatism. In so doing we will engage questions such as the following: Can the concept of justice be coherently applied to relations between generations? Is there something peculiarly modern about extending moral concern to future generations? Does an excessive preoccupation with tradition amount to an illegitimate enfranchisement of the dead? Do the conditions of modern life inhibit our ability to sympathize with future generations and make sacrifices on their behalf?

Participants will include: Dr. Ross Carroll (Exeter), Professor Alan Cromartie (Reading), Dr. Tim Fowler (Bristol), Professor Christopher Gill (Exeter), Professor Iain Hampsher-Monk (Exeter), Dr. Robert Jubb (Reading), Dr. Maeve McKeown (Oxford), Dr Joanne Paul (New College of the Humanities), and Dr. Paul Sagar (Cambridge).

Registration is free though anyone interested in attending should contact Dr. Ross Carroll (r.carroll@exeter.ac.uk)

Staff and students of institutions participating in the SWTDC can claim travel expenses for participation in the events, if they are not based in Exeter. For further information, please, contact Dario Castiglione (d.castiglione@exeter.ac.uk)