Workshop on

Quantitative Approaches to Gender Research

This workshop introduces early career researchers to quantitative approaches to the study of gender and politics. There is a long tradition of examining issues such as women's representation, participation and policy outcomes using quantitative methods. The workshop covers the following topics: secondary data sources, constructing gender sensitive measures, psychophysiological measures and data analysis techniques. The Workshop will be organized with practical training sessions, with presentations by early career PhDs, followed by more advanced PhD students, and a talk by Prof. Manuela Barreto. The workshop is directed by Prof. Susan Banducci.

PhD students who are interested in giving a presentation, please, contact S.A.Banducci@exeter.ac.uk

The workshops are open to students and staff from the SWDTC and other Universities in the South West of England and Wales, but participants should register in advance. For any information, please contact Susan Banducci (S.A.Banducci@exeter.ac.uk).
